Carl Swartz New President 4-H Beef Club

The re-organization meeting of the Vulcan West-Ensign 4-H Beef Club was held Oct. 7, with president Paul Shaw in charge.

New officers elected were: Carl Swartz, president; Marlene Lucas, vice-president; Gordon Shaw, secretary. Members of the advisory committee are: Bill Lucas, leader; Mrs. Betty McFadden, assistant leader; Doug Swartz, Les Shaw and Charles Rhodes.

All juniors of the district interested in beef club work are invited to join the club.

Then there's the one about the jury member who voted for acquittal on the grounds that the woman charged with killing her husband was now a widow.

SMILES 'N CHUCKLES. Old timers of this district found much to enjoy in the banquet and program which marked this year's 15th Annual Senior Citizen's Night. Above from the right are Charles Northcott, Sr., Mrs. Silva Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Vic Bertrand, all from Milo. Also enjoying the laugh is Ed Kehr of Vulcan and his wife. Many guests come to Vulcan early in the day and the streets are dotted with once-familiar faces as they renew acquaintances around town.

Elevator Road
Council discussed the rebuilding of elevator road and drainage in that area. A special meeting of council will be called as soon as the engineer's report is available so that the work can be proceeded with as soon as possible.

Town Planning
The Town of Vulcan General Plan has been completed by the Oldman River Planning Commission. A special council meeting will be arranged to review and discuss the plan and it will also be brought before a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Other Business

Harvey Wallace was appointed as secretary-treasurer of the town with duties to commence Oct. 16. The CPR was to be asked for an easement to allow a water line to be laid under the tracks to the Noble Blade property.

Town foreman Peter Schuler was authorized to employ one additional man for one month.

The resignation of Walter Stewart from the public works department was accepted with regret.

An insurance survey of the Town of Vulcan has been completed by the firm of Reed, Shaw and McNaught and will be studied by the finance committee.

SCIENTIFIC OBSERVATION

Economic experts, watching closely the business indicators, observed that carloadings kept decreasing month after month. At the same time consumption of beverages, such as wine, beer and whiskey went up seven per cent. The moral: More people are getting loaded than freight cars.

Regular Meeting Keystone Class

On Thursday, Oct. 5 the Keystone Class met in the church parlors with 14 members present. The meeting opened by singing "Where He Leads Me," followed by a prayer. At the September meeting $30 was sent to missionaries in India, Jamaica and Hong Kong. A very appropriate roll call "what we are thankful for" brought forth various answers with our thought in common "Our freedom of worship and our many blessings."

The devotional was given by Mrs. Hollister, taken from the book "Victory in Vietnam" by missionary Gordon Smith, and family prayer. A card was received from Mr. and Mrs. Ed Benoit. Tuesday, Oct. 10 was set as visiting day for the shut ins.

The meeting adjourned and a delicious lunch was served by the hostess and helpers.

Election Scene Quiet

Gerry Ness Back As Mayor; Council Vacancies Filled

Vulcan electors returned Gerry Ness for his second term as mayor, favoring him over Adrian Broere who was making his second bid for office. Election day was Wednesday, Oct. 18.

With about 35 to 40 percent of the electorate turning out Mayor Ness polled 176 votes compared with 102 for Adrian Broere. Four ballots were spoiled, giving a total vote of 282. Close to 900 residents are eligible to vote.

There was no contest for the two vacancies on council. Mel Jordan was elected by acclamation to a three-year stint on council succeeding George Richardson who did not contest his seat. Dave Schierman who concluded a broken term this fall, remained on council for another term.

At Carmangay Wesley V. Knight and Walter T. Middleton were elected by acclamation as village councillors while Paul Kryzanowski was elected by acclamation as village representative on the board of the Little Bow Municipal Hospital.

With about a 47 per cent turnout of voters at Champion, Ernie Nowlin regained his seat on town council defeating Bob Williams.

Demonology is the study of evil spirits.

Lionettes Are Hosts . . .

District's Pioneer Citizens Back For Annual Reunion

A few were brought in wheel chairs, some with failing sight or limbs were guided by the arm while others still hale and hearty strode in on their own, but by whatever route, the old timers of Vulcan and district came back to enjoy again the annual Senior Citizens Night, Wednesday, Oct. 18.

The Vulcan Lionettes sponsored the event for the fifteenth time and it was probably the happiest night the Lodge Hall has seen since the group gathered last year.

It was a grand reunion for the likes of Mrs. Mary Eamor, whose wheel chair was surrounded by well wishers as she won the door prize, or for Hirst Goldthorpe, Sr. who sang his old story-balls and could have gone on and on, or for Luke Ohlweiser who first danced a pioneer version of the soft shoe shuffle then, belying his 85 years, threw away his cane and whirled Lionette Edythe Gottenberg around the dance floor. Charlie Stenler was bubbling over with fascinating tales of his generation here and guest speaker Rev. Albert Collier had the help of many as he travelled Vulcan's early streets with his listeners, stirring up names and events at each corner.

Following the traditional turkey supper 140 guests, down in numbers from other years through illness and the toll of passing years were welcomed by Lionette President Lillian Deal who then called upon Lion President Howie Klippert for a tribute to the assembly. In his brief remarks President Howie said, "Silver and gold are precious treasures but our most precious possessions are our elderly citizens . . . you are the elite of our society."

Mayor Gary Ness brought greetings from the town to its elderly citizens and expressed appreciation to the many who come back to enjoy the night and to the sponsors and general public who contribute in making such a reunion possible.

United Church To Celebrate 55th Anniversary

Dr. W. J. Collett of Calgary will be the guest speaker at the 55th Anniversary Service in the Vulcan United Church on Sunday, Oct. 29, at 11:00 a.m.

DR. W. J. COLLETT

Dr. Collett was born in England, moving with his family to Calgary in 1919. He graduated from Crescent Heights high school and the Calgary Normal School and upon graduation taught at the Peace school, some 20 miles from Vulcan. He received his Arts degree from the University of Saskatchewan in 1935 and was ordained from St. Stephen's College in 1937. He received his M.A. from Columbia University, his B.D. and B.E.D. from the University of Alberta and his D.D. from St. Stephen's College in 1960.

He held pastorates at St. Paul, Taber and Claresholm and served at Mount Royal College in Calgary from 1948 and as principal since 1960. He is at present Director of Counselling and Guidance in Wheatland County.

The Rev. Albert Collier, now of Red Deer but whose family ties are rooted deep in Vulcan's early history, was then introduced and proceeded to weave a thread of pleasant memories back to the days of the coal oil lamps, school concerts, horses, outhouses, coal stoves, sleighs, wagons and the fond thoughts they evoke.

His listeners lived again the day when merchants over on what is now the Revelstoke Lumber street, challenged the main street businessmen to a softball game, and then the day Max Mutz thought his hotel was on fire but found only a broken steam pipe in the bathroom belching smoke-like steam. Then there was the time blacksmith Tom Lebeau came to the old Wolfe-Pitman Hardware for five cents worth of nails. The cash box was above the nail keg and a dime had fallen into the keg which went with the purchase. Tom found the dime, reported it and his month-end statement read, "shingle nails—5 cents, one dime—15 cents." Or there was the occasion when George Pitman, at this time a barber, ordered from the hardware partnership of Clyde Hall and Joe Collier, a set of grates for his stove. He then bought another second-hand stove, now no longer needing the $11.90 grates. Known to be a lover of fresh fish from Lunenburg, George fell into a trap which saw the hardware make a deal with O. A. Craig CPR agent, who sent the grates to Pitman's.

Services To Mark Church Addition

On April 1 of this year seven trucks pulled into the Vulcan Church of Christ to stock 70 yards of gravel. This marked the beginning of church renovations, the largest undertaking since the church was built in 1927. The building has been redesigned and enlarged giving needed room in the main church and additional space downstairs, a new entrance and balcony.

From the church history: "Lots were purchased, finances raised and work began on the present building in the fall of 1927 and on June 17, 1928 the building was dedicated for service. One outstanding feature was that practically all the work was volunteered by members and friends. Later a parsonage was bought about one-half block away."

Many changes have taken place over the past years: An educational room was added in 1948 which also gave room for a new kitchen and washrooms. In 1961 a vigorous program was begun to upgrade the interior of the building with new classrooms, floors and covering, new pews, carpeting and furnishings. In 1961 Wayne Cutforth, formerly of Vulcan now operating his own drafting business in Calgary, answered the call for help, and this year he presented the annual meeting with a set of working drawings for a new exterior design which has become a reality this summer.

This addition not only enhances the decor of the building but embraces a new vestibule, church office, "cry room," balcony, added seating in the Sanctuary adding working room in the basement and a new future washroom.

O. P. Buris was called as the first minister from Eugene, Ore. Many ministers have served through the years such as E. G. Hansell and J. R. Chapman. In 1961 the church called Ron Pelham and family from Ontario to serve.

An open invitation is being extended by the Church of Christ to their worship service this Sunday to mark the near completion of the addition. Mr. Boyd Lamiman will be guest speaker at services at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Fire Safety Forms Available

Fire Chief Bob Johnston has announced that a farm fire safety program will be carried out with rural residents this fall. Forms are now available and it is hoped that farmers will make an effort to pick these up, and check their buildings, especially after the large number of farm fires that occurred this summer.

PUBLIC USE. Admiring the new movie projector and screen are Vulcan Lion President Howie Klippert, standing and Jerry Wylie. The machine was purchased by the club as a Centennial gesture and is free for use by any organization.

Also on the go are Lions club calendars, while another committee is attempting to get farmstead signs back to the club so they can be refurbished. Oh yes, the Turkey Shoot's on Saturday, Dec. 2.

Have you ever wondered...

... if you have a hidden talent just waiting to be discovered.

Everyone has a certain amount of creative ability but, in most cases, expert help is needed to realize and develop this talent. Professional help in all phases of the creative and performing arts is available to everyone in Alberta through the Cultural Development Branch of the Alberta Provincial Secretary's Department. Experts in all phases of arts and crafts, painting, sculpture and ceramics; music, both instrumental and vocal; the theatre arts, acting, directing, stage management and make-up; are available to all age groups in all parts of the province. The only requisite for obtaining this instruction is the formation of a group whose members have a common desire to develop their creative ability. The Cultural Development Branch also provides assistance in the development of libraries; organization, management and administration. Beginning with the exposure of the performing and expressive arts through tours and exhibitions, to financial aid to students in professional art careers, the Cultural Development Branch contributes greatly to the esthetic growth of our province.

... where Community Development begins?

Community Development begins with the people of the community. It is the residents who decide that social and economic problems exist and it is the residents who must take action to solve these problems. If they wish professional assistance, they may invite a Community Development Officer to help them in finding the solutions. His major task in carrying out such an assignment is to create learning situations which, in time, will provide the people of the community with increased knowledge, added skills and greater self-confidence. These attributes, in turn, will allow residents to take a more active part in making decisions which affect them and their community. The Community Development Branch will assist the people of all Alberta communities, in accordance with the province's program on Human Resources Development.

... about the standard of living enjoyed by Alberta's chickens?

Chickens, turkeys and other poultry destined for Alberta's dinner tables enjoy top level living. Poultry producers and processors are required to maintain high standards of operation, facilities and sanitation in order to be licensed by the Poultry Branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture.

To see that these qualities are kept up, the Branch makes regular inspections of housing, ventilation, automation, feeds and feeding, disease prevention and management techniques. To assist in maintaining the standards set, the Branch provides specialized services and technical and statistical information to producers, hatchery operators, processors, feed manufacturers, and allied industries.

... how medical care is provided for the residents of Alberta's sparsely populated northland?

In an area of 104,000 square miles, with a population density of considerably less than one person per square mile, six Municipal Nurses of the Alberta Department of Health travel by plane, train, car and foot to provide the Northern Alberta Health Service. This is a program of preventive health and emergency treatment which includes immunizing children, delivering babies and treating accident victims. Where necessary, the nurses' services are supplemented by medical specialists flown in to administer to specific needs. In addition to serving the north country, there are seven other Municipal Nursing stations in the province, providing emergency treatment service, public health services and preventive medicine in areas which have no easy access to hospital or medical care. The nurses and the facilities they operate are financed by the Alberta Department of Health, although a small charge is made for treatment, and medications provided for emergency purposes are provided at cost.

... if "agriculture" and "conservation" are really totally incompatible?

Not really. They CAN live together in peace and harmony, and that's a fact that's being proven by the Conservation and Utilization Branch of the Program Development Division, Alberta Department of Agriculture. Under the Branch's Land Assembly Program, areas presently being used for agricultural purposes but which have recreational and conservational potential are being purchased from their owners and are being utilized for all these purposes. In addition, financial assistance is available to farmers who wish to develop new land under the condition that they leave designated portions in a natural state to provide a recreational area and cover for wild game. In this way, Alberta's most valuable land areas have a multiple use, contributing to both agriculture and conservation.

... how Alberta's highways are protected against "cracking up"?

Highways are like humans, they can only take so much pressure before going to pieces. To ensure Alberta's highways of a long and useful life, the weight and size of the vehicles using them are carefully controlled. All primary highways in the province carry a load limit established by the Highway Traffic Board of the Alberta Department of Highways. Any load exceeding these limits must have a special permit. When this is applied for, the Board considers the route selected, the size and nature of the load, number of bridges en route and traffic conditions. If all factors are agreeable, the permit is issued. If changes are necessary, the Board may require the load to be split between two or more trucks, the use of an alternate route, a controlled speed, or other revisions. Enforcement of these regulations allow Alberta motorists full enjoyment of their highways with a minimum of traffic obstruction and ensure a maximum life span for each highway.

Unjust Is The Rakeoff

Government explains that it cannot return to employers overpayments of Canada Pension Plan money because it hasn't found a practical way to do what's right.

There is a limit on the individual's share of the pension payment. The same limit is set on the employer's share and no problem arises when an employee has only one employer during the calendar year. But a man may change his job for a variety of reasons and he may even have, if he is hardworking and needs the money, more than one employer at a time.

Each of his employers must start making pension payments for the man from scratch as though he were the man's one and only employer, and each may pay up to or nearly up to the limit.

If the employee has overpaid he just has to ask for his money back at the time he files his income tax form, but his two or more employers cannot get back any part of the overpayment. The government is smug about it. Too bad, it says, but there it is.

Besides, say some people in Ottawa, in the great United States of America, employers don't get back overpayments made in a similar pension plan. When the U.S. government cannot find a way to be just, how can we?

The U.S. had its scheme in operation for several years before Canada thought to do likewise. Presumably, Canada studied all the angles. Did it think of drawing back because of the inevitable injustice to employers? Or was the difficulty of doing justice to employers and the consequent big rakeoff for the treasury one of the merits of the scheme?

Ecuador is the Spanish word for the equator, which is straddled by the South American country.

George B. McClellan, Alberta's new ombudsman and the first person to hold such a position in North America, assumed his duties as "representative of the public," effective Sept. 1.

Mr. McClellan has quarters temporarily in the Legislative Building. Permanent offices for the ombudsman and his staff will be located in the Centennial Building, in downtown Edmonton.

In his official capacity, Mr. McClellan will receive complaints from any persons relating to any action or decision by any Government of Alberta administrative department, branch or agency. He is empowered by statute to conduct any investigation necessary, recommend remedial action if it is considered justified, and to report and make recommendations to the legislature.

Mr. McClellan says that as ombudsman he intends to be accessible to all people on an informal basis as possible, with the hope that many problems may be solved without lengthy official inquiries. The ombudsman staff is expected to include legal and investigative personnel.

Routine business matters were discussed and also further discussion was held restoration, particularly fencing and cutting of grass of the Reid Hill cemetery. Also the erection of some type of marker to the memory of those early settlers of the Reid Hill district.

Roll call was answered by "What I Have Been Thankful for this Year."

Birthday remembrances were presented to five of the members who observe birthdays in October, namely: Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Harold, Mrs. Deal and Mrs. South.

U.C. Explorers Help UNICEF

The United Church Explorers Group, under the direction of Miss Nancy Montgomery, will be collecting money in special boxes, for UNICEF on Hallowe'en, next Tuesday.

These children this year, will be sharing their fun with children around the world by collecting coins for this cause as well as treats for themselves, thus bringing the benefits of food and medicine to thousands. One cent will provide six large glasses of milk and 10 cents will supply antibiotics for the cure of trachoma.

Mrs. D. Jorgenson is conducting a similar program at Brant.

Pioneer Citizens

guised as $11.90 worth of Lunenburg fish for which he gladly accepted charges.

Rev. Collier recalled the days when Vulcan hired a football team and Mayor Butchart put them to work planting trees all over town. "He got blasted, but look at those trees now."

In closing Rev. Collier told his listeners that this could be the most wonderful, serene time of their lives. "A time of inner peace . . . Peace of God which passeth all understanding."

Following the program downstairs an interesting hour of entertainment was provided on the main floor. Lionette Eileen Haga first introduced a newcomer to Vulcan, 10-year-old Korean, Sue Kim whose outstanding piano work was the surprise of the night. Judy Willard, came from Calgary to offer several favorite vocal selections and she was followed by a male quartet, a product of Vulcan's Centennial celebrations, made up of Ray Wellman, Skeez Christensen, Dick Hammer and Louis Shaw. Oldtimer Hirst Goldthorpe then sang and then a piano-organ medley was heard with Mrs. Allan Fath and her mother Mrs. Swartz of Stavely, at the keyboard.

Senior citizens, accustomed to a skit by the sponsors themselves, were not disappointed. The Lionettes staged their original production, "When Paw Was Courting Maw," and while the presentation may have differed from actuality, the costumes and acting got the message across.

Before the evening closed several guests danced to the organ and piano music.

SOIL TESTING RESULTS AND FALL FERTILIZING

You do not need to wait for the results of your soil test before ordering your fertilizer supplies.

Soil samples should be taken from the fields if you are going to fall fertilize. If sampling is done after the fertilizer application, an inaccurate interpretation of analysis results can occur.

Fertility studies have shown that stubble and hay, pasture and bush land which was broken late in the season all require a basic fall application of nitrogen. If, after this basic requirement has been met, the soil test shows that a higher rate of nitrogen than that generally recommended is needed, the balance plus phosphorous and potassium requirements can be drilled in with next spring's crop. Since only 25 pounds of elemental nitrogen per acre can be drilled in with the crop because of the danger of reducing germination, broadcast fertilizing is not a duplication of time and effort.

You can use your previous experience with fertilizers, the results of previous soil tests, and the general recommendations for your area as a guide for ordering the bulk of your fertilizer requirements this fall. Purchasing fertilizers which contain nitrogen and phosphorous, either alone or in combination allows you to use them in varying amounts and combinations to meet soil test recommendations.

Many farmers are planning their fertilizer programs well in advance so that they can take advantage of fall delivery discounts, bulk buying discounts, the benefits of fall fertilizer applications and soil testing information.

FALL APPLICATION OF WILD OAT KILLERS

If your land has a tendency to blow, Bill Lobay, head of the Weed Control Branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture says that fall application of Wild Oat Killers is not recommended.

The reason is that the land must be prepared so no lumps or little straw is left, or the chemicals will not be effective.
